SITUATION SUMMARY

Public health and medical (EF-8) Situation Report Ebola Virus Disease, 2014

Date of report: October 9, 2014

Operational period: October 8 - October 10, 2014

CDPH/EMSA

There is currently one suspected, but not probable, case of Ebola in LA County and no confirmed cases of Ebola under investigation in California. At present, the weekly situational assessment for the risk of Ebola infection in California is very low.

There are currently no confirmed or suspect cases of Ebola under investigation in California.

The outbreak of Ebola Virus Disease (EVD) in the West African nations of Guinea, Sierra Leone, and Liberia continues to expand but does not pose a significant risk to the United States. As of September 28, the World Health Organization has reported a cumulative total of 8033 suspect, probable, and confirmed cases and 3865 deaths. Based on the current situation in West Africa, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) considers the risk of importation of multiple cases of EVD into the United States to be very low. However, the outbreak is evolving, and this assessment may change.

A patient with confirmed EVD, diagnosed on September 30, 2014, in Dallas, Texas died on October 8th, 2014. This was the first travel-related case detected outside of West Africa's outbreak region.

The CDC, California Department of Public Health (CDPH), and Emergency Medical Services Authority (EMSA) continue to prepare for the potentiality that a traveler returning to California from West Africa may be infected with Ebola virus.

CDPH continues to work with the healthcare community and local health jurisdictions to identify potential suspect cases and avoid spread of the disease. New guidelines and updated guidelines released by CDC are posted on the CDPH Communicable Diseases Emergency Response (CDER) website available at: (<http://cdph.ca.gov/programs/cder/Pages/Ebola.aspx>). Likewise, EMSA has developed guidelines for Emergency Medical Services (EMS) personnel based on the recommendations of CDC. The guidelines have been distributed to Local Emergency Management Services Agency (LEMSA) Administrators, LEMSAs Medical Directors and the Regional Disaster Medical Health Coordination (RDMHC) Programs. Revisions will be made as necessary. The document is posted on EMSA's website at http://www.emsa.ca.gov/ebola_control.

Cal OES Coastal Region – Planned Event and Major Exercise

Monday, 10/06/14 through Tuesday, 10/14/14, the San Francisco Center for Humanitarian Disaster Response (SFCHADR), announces the return of Fleet Week to San Francisco. This year's program will feature several exercises, which include the delivery and demonstration of a United States Marine Corps (USMC) Shock Trauma Platoon at General Hospital, the 'Fifth Annual Senior Leaders' Seminar, the return of the popular 'K9 Heroes Program', and the exchange of best practices with San Francisco Fire Department's (SFFD's) Urban Search and Rescue team. Military medical and air teams will demonstrate the military's capability to enhance overall patient care capabilities within the city following a large-scale disaster (by invitation only).

Further San Francisco Fleet Week Information: <http://www.fleetweek.us/>

The Blue Angels will be conducting practice flyovers around San Francisco on Thursday, 10/09/14 and Friday, 10/10/14, from 1230 – 1600 hours.

The Air Show will commence on Saturday, 10/11/14 and go through Sunday, 10/12/14.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

Northern California

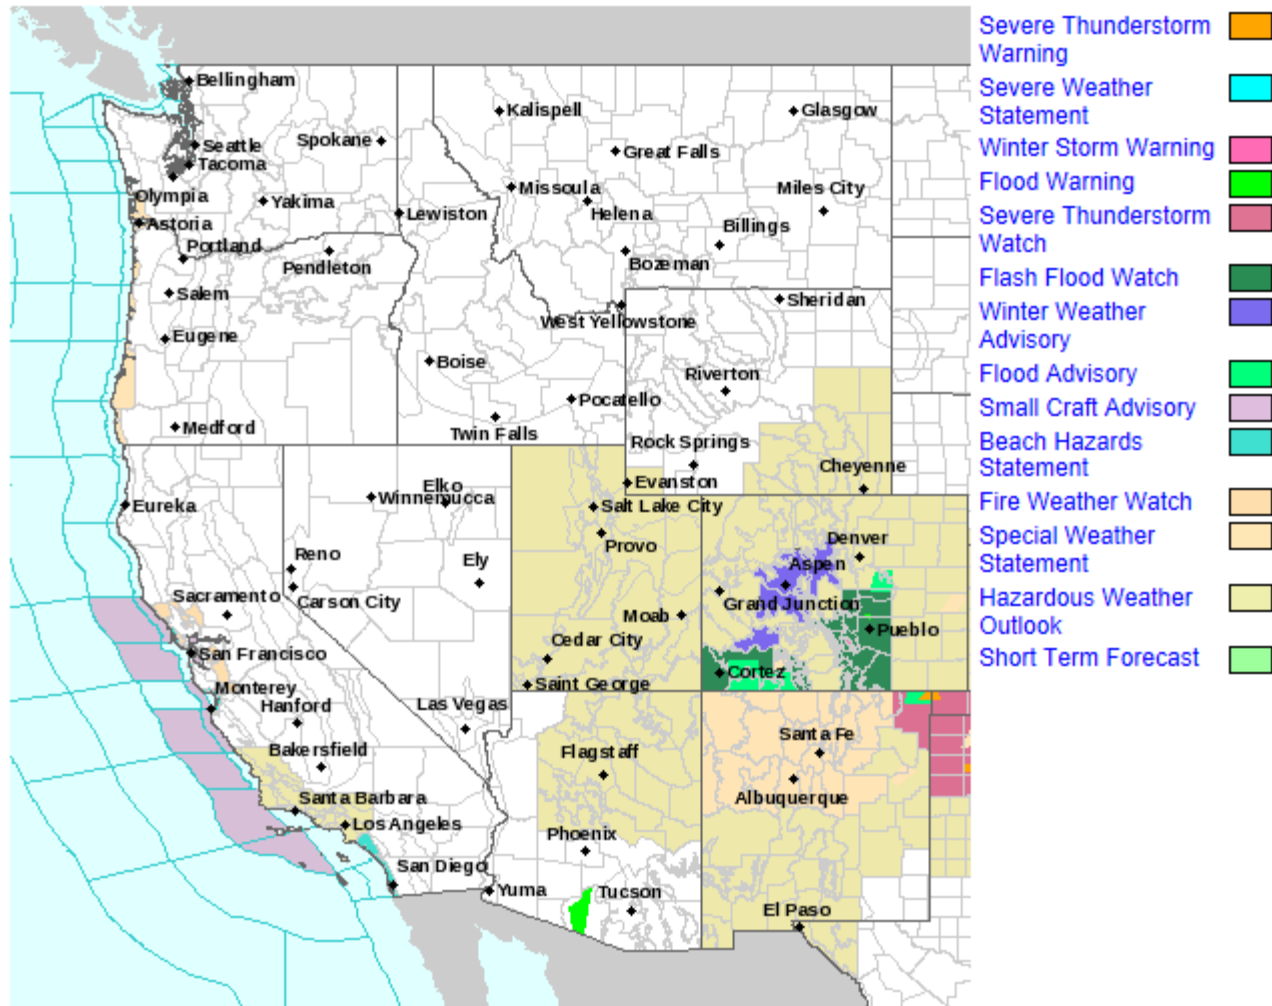

A weak trough will approach the coast and move inland today then further inland overnight. High pressure will quickly take over the weather pattern again for the weekend, leading to well above temperatures and continued dry conditions. Some north to east winds will develop later Saturday and become quite strong overnight and Sunday. Wind speeds of 10-22 mph with gusts 30-40 mph will be possible. This will help keep weekend temperatures warm and humidity quite low (afternoon relative humidity 8-12%; driest locations Sunday, especially with poor to moderate overnight recovery). Monday, another weak trough will approach the coast. It is likely to bring a little precipitation to the northwest corner Monday night, and all areas will see substantial cooling and some increase in humidity with this trough Tuesday. Low pressure will remain over the region the rest of the week with a good chance of another batch of significant rain moving ashore next Thursday. Conditions will become quite windy next week from the southeast to southwest, but temperatures will be way down and relative humidity up significantly from recent conditions.

Southern California

A weak trough will bring cooler, onshore flow through the end of the week. Marine layer coverage will reach the inland valleys and some of the lower foothills of Southern California each morning through Saturday, resulting in much better relative humidity recovery at lower elevations. High temperatures will be 5-8 degrees cooler than earlier in the week as highs will be in the upper 80s to lower 90s in the valleys to the upper 60s and 70s in the mountains above 5,000 feet. Northwest winds of 15-25 mph will be possible along the central coast and in the Kern County Mountains during the afternoon today and Friday. Minimum relative humidity will be higher outside the deserts with readings mainly in the 15-25% during the afternoon hours. This weekend, strong high pressure will approach the central coast, resulting in much warmer and drier weather. By Sunday and Monday, highs will be back in the upper 90s to near 100 in the inland valleys and lower foothills. Minimum relative humidity may drop into the single digits during the afternoon Sunday and Monday. A surface pressure gradient may produce north winds of 15-25 mph in Santa Barbara County and the I-5 Corridor during the night and morning hours Friday and Saturday night. In addition, offshore winds may develop Sunday night into Monday, but at this time, winds are expected to be light. The warm weather will last through Tuesday before a strong trough brings much cooler and more humid weather to the region during the middle of next week.
